Examples emails for disclosure of Gifts and benefits

Nominal Gift or Benefit example 1

Dear (Supervisors Name)

On (date). I was offered a free lunch by a representative of . The name of the person that offered the lunch was . I have had a long working relationship with this person for many years as they hold a similar position as mine at . They were attending UNE to participate in a training course on a software package that we currently use. There is no conflict of interest between us as UNE will not benefit from them receiving training on the software package, this system is widely used in the sector. There has been no breach in confidentiality in terms of how UNE uses the software.

The value of the lunch was $30.00.

I sought your approval verbally before attending the lunch and now I am formally providing confirmation that I attended the lunch and seek your written approval. Can you please confirm your approval?

Regards

Dear (Staff Member) cc to giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au

On the basis of the information you have provided to me and the declaration you have made that there is no conflict of interest in accepting this lunch, I am happy to approve this on this occasion.

I have sent this email to giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au to formalize the process.

Nominal Gift or Benefit example 2

Dear (Supervisors Name)

On (date). I was offered ongoing free hospitality at a local pub. This was offered by a local contractor that currently is engaged by the University to provide  services. I have had a long relationship with the contractor and don't feel that this represents a conflict of interest because we are half way through the contract and we are two years away from going back to tender. The value of the offer would be under $300. I am seeking your approval to accept the offer.

Regards

Dear (Staff Member cc giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au)

On the basis of the information provided to me I cannot approve this request. I believe there is a significant risk of a perceived or actual conflict of interest in accepting this offer. The fact that we are not currently looking to go back to tender is irrelevant in this case. The perception from the community would be if such an offer was accepted the contractor may receive preferential treatment in the next tender round, based on the Gifts or Benefits that have been provided to you. The risk to the University is too high and therefore I cannot approve your request on this occasion.

Thank you for bringing this to my attention. I have forwarded this email to giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au to formalize the process.

Significant Gifts or Benefit example 1

Dear (Supervisors Name)

On (date). I won iPad in a competition that was held at the  conference I attended. The gift was given to me by the conference organizer and was sponsored by a major software company that attended the conference. The organizer of the conference has run these events for a number of years and are attended by a number of Universities each year. The iPad I won was via a lucky door prize and was random in the selection of the winner. My attendance at the conference was paid for by the University. The software supplier that sponsored the prize is currently involved in a tender process with the University. I believe there is no conflict of interest between myself and the event organizer and I have no relationship with the sponsor of the iPad. The estimated value of the gift is $700.

I am now seeking your approval to retain the iPad.

Regards

Dear (Head of Cost Centre)

Please see the below email from . I believe based on the circumstances outlined above the staff should be able to retain the gift. It was won randomly and I believe there is no conflict of interest between the parties involved.

I therefore seeking your approval for the gift to be retained by *****.

Regards

Dear (Supervisor and Staff Member cc giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au)

Thank you for your email. After reviewing the emails I agree that the staff member should be able to retain the gift. I therefore approve the request.

I have sent this email to giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au to formalize the process.

Monetary Gifts example 1

Dear (Supervisor)

On (date) I was offered a monetary gift of $100, which I did not accept. The gift was offered to me by . The gift was offered to me as a thank you for assistance I provided to him, in my role as . Although I have known him for many years, I wouldn't say that we were friends. I did advise him that it was against University policy to accept the gift and thanked him for the offer and explained how the Gifts and Benefits Policy operates at the University. He was fine about it once I explained it all to him.

Can you please forward this to giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au.

Regards

Dear (Staff Member cc giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au)

Thank you for this declaration I have forwarded on as requested.

Corporate Gifts example 1

Dear Supervisor

For your information

On (date) I was received a corporate gift, being a glass sculpture. The gift was given by the Vice-Chancellor of  University. It was given in appreciation of work done between the Universities on a significant project that will benefit both institutions. I have had a good working relationship with the Vice-Chancellor for many years and I perceive no conflict of interest in accepting this gift on behalf the University. The estimated value is $500 and the gift has been displayed in the public area of the library, it contains a plaque detailing the origin of the gift etc.

Can you please forward this on to giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au.

Regards

Dear (Staff Member cc giftsandbenefits@une.edu.au)

Thank you for this declaration I have forwarded on as requested.
